

EPA's Lead and Copper Rule Revisions mandates that we post the material of the service line that serves this water system. Our service line material is lead-free.

A service line is defined as the piping that transports water from the well to the building. If the material of the service line is lead or galvanized, it could have an impact on human health.

Additional information can be found at :
<https://www.epa.gov/ground-water-and-drinking-water/revised-lead-and-copper-rule>